Child molester given 38 years in prison

Oaks man convicted on 89 separate counts

By AMY SIGGEL
News Chronicle

VENTURA — A Thousand Oaks man and longtime Boy Scouts leader was sentenced Friday to serve 38 years in prison for repeatedly molesting two young girls over several years.

Charles Robert Ceballos, 58, had been convicted after a trial in August of 89 separate child molestation charges.

Ceballos, who a probation report says suffers from arthritis, a heart condition and is overweight, is likely to spend the rest of his life behind bars.

He will be eligible for parole in 19 years, when he is 77 years old. At that time, his victims, who are now 11 and 15 years old, will be 30 and 34 years old, respectively.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Frawley asked Superior Court Judge Robert Bradley to give Ceballos a prison term long enough so the victims would "not have to see him on the street until they are well into their adult years."

Time is not going to heal the victims' emotional scars," Frawley said.

In a 19-page letter to Judge Bradley, Ceballos maintained his innocence and denied the charges, as he had at his two-week trial. He accused the victims' aunt — who had urged the girls to tell police of the molestations — of manipulating the girls and of "brainwashing" them.

"I feel at this time as I have all along that I am innocent and a victim of circumstances," Ceballos wrote. He did not address the judge on Friday, and neither did the victims. Ceballos did not openly react to Bradley's lengthy sentence.

In his letter, Ceballos called institutionalization "a fate worse than death itself."

Ceballos' attorney, Jenny Scovis of Thousand Oaks, asked the judge for leniency, saying Ceballos is not a "violent" or "mean" man.

"To do anything else would be sentencing him to a death sentence," Scovis said.

Bradley also told Ceballos to pay $10,000 to the state victims' Restitution Fund, ordered $225 in fines and ordered him to submit samples of his blood and saliva for testing to check for various diseases.

Using an unusual approach, prosecutors had charged Ceballos, a former Burbank plating company owner and former Conejo Valley Boy Scouts leader, with 91 child molestation charges in anticipation of a crucial state Supreme Court decision handed down last April that states child victims who are molested repeatedly over a long period of time do not have to specify the exact time and place of each assault.

The girls testified against Ce-ballos, who was arrested Jan. 18.

The jury also found true several special allegations that the molestation included intercourse with one girl and that the crimes were committed under duress or with force. The two charges for which he was acquitted were conceded by the prosecution because Ceballos was out of town at the time of the alleged incidents.

Jurors said after the trial that they believed the girls and not Ceballos.

Molestation verdict guilty

TO man convicted of 89 counts of sexually abusing 2 girls

Jurors convicted a Thousand Oaks man of 89 counts of child molestation Wednesday.

Charles Robert Ceballos, 58, didn't react as the verdicts droned on, but appeared shocked when Superior Court Judge Robert C. Bradley ordered him jailed immediately.

Ceballos protested that he needed to wind up business at the company he owns.

"You'll have to find someone else to do it," Bradley replied.

Deputy District Attorney Michael Frawley asked for Ceballos to be held until his sentencing on Sept. 21 because he feared Ceballos might try to flee, since many of the charges required Ceballos to go to prison.

Jurors convicted Ceballos of molesting two girls — a 15-year-old, who Frawley said was molested for nine years, and a 11-year-old girl, who Frawley said was molested for five years.

Frawley said the verdicts would help relieve the victims, who reported the molestations in January.

"They've been through hell for the past eight months," he said.

Defense attorney Jenny Scovis said she plans to appeal the verdicts, saying she believes Ceballos is innocent.

Jurors acquitted Ceballos on two counts.

Frawley had asked the jury to dismiss one count because he discovered Ceballos had been out of town during month he was accused of molesting the girls on that particular count.

Jurors said afterwards they couldn't reach agreement on the one other count.

Jurors said they simply didn't believe Ceballos, who denied the molestations when he took the stand.

Ceballos could face up to 296 years in prison, but Bradley said his sentence would be based not on the total number of charges, but on the fact that the molestations continued for years.

Thousand Oaks man convicted in 89 counts of child molestation

VENTURA — A Thousand Oaks man was convicted Wednesday of 89 counts of child molestation in a case that drew him to prison for the rest of his life.

Charles Robert Ceballos, 58, convicted on all but two counts of a Ventura Superior Court judge repeatedly molested two girls over a period of several years.

Ceballos testified at the trial denied the accusations, saying he was out of town on several of the occasions when molestations occurred. But jurors said they did not believe him.

died was read.

"I believe he was prepared to say what he thought was believable and it wasn't honest," said juror Jeanette Case of Simi Valley.

After reading each verdict, Superior Court Judge Robert Bradley revoked Ceballos' $10,000 bail despite defense attorney Jenny Scovis' protests and ordered Ceballos jailed on the spot.

Sentencing is scheduled for Sept. 21.

"To say this is a custody case (prison time) is an understatement," the judge said in ordering Ceballos jailed immediately.

"It's a victory for those victims," Frawley said.

The maximum prison term for all but 13 of the 89 charges is eight years in prison, and the remaining 13 counts carry a maximum of three years in prison, Frawley said. The maximum term for all the charges adds up to 647 years.

The jury also found true several special allegations that the molestations included intercourse and that the crimes were committed under duress or with force.

Judge Bradley said the vast number of counts against Ceballos would not dictate the sentence he pronounced. Rather, the judge said, the fact that the crimes continued for many years will have a "substantial impact" on Ceballos' sentence.

Defense attorney Scovis said she will appeal the verdict. "I don't see how they found him guilty. I really believe he is innocent," she said.

Ruling that victims need not remember time, place of alleged assaults to play role

VENTURA — A Ventura Superior Court judge began questioning potential jurors Monday in the trial of a Thousand Oaks man who faces 91 separate charges of child molestation.

Prosecutors originally charged Charles Ceballos, 58, with the unusually high number of counts in anticipation of a recent state Supreme Court decision handed down in April that states child victims who are abused repeatedly over a long period of time do not have to recall the time and place of

Nov. 6 election, and Gov. George Deukmejian. "In too many ways, the last eight years have been 'lost,'" Feinstein said of Deukmejian, citing the state's failure to get car insurance reform and the recent state budget stalemate. "We should be able to move to solve the problems of this great state. But we can't do it with a caretaker governor who isn't willing to lead."

She also noted that Wilson's campaign has more money, but criticized its source. "In the U.S. Senate, Pete Wilson received more contributions from the scandal-ridden savings and loan industry than anyone else in the entire Congress," she said. "Frankly, I don't believe that California can have a governor that's beholden to the savings and loan industry, and to the pesticide companies and to the big oil and to the chemical industry."

she said. "That's why I am determined to restore Cal-OSHA (the state worker's safety agency) to full authority, and I will reintegrate the Agricultural Labor Relations Board to protect farm workers from exploitation."

Ceballos is free in lieu of $10,000 bail and an order that he cannot contact the alleged victims, according to documents filed in Ventura Superior Court high court case.

Before the Jones case, appeals court judges were split on the question of whether child witnesses had to distinguish details of each act, O'Neill said. Now, witnesses must specify the types of acts, the frequency and general time frame.

Defense position
Thousand Oaks defense attorney Jenny Scotts unsuccessfully sought last month to have the charges dropped, calling a preliminary hearing March 16 in Ventura Municipal Court a "farce." Viola estimates there are more than 5,000 articles at the museum, which is located in a free-shaded spot off Ventura Park Road. The inn is a reproduction of the Grand Union Hotel that was moved to the site in 1966 and completely destroyed by a fire of suspicious origin in 1970. The original inn was built in 1876.

Rebuilt and reopened in 1976, the inn has received much of its inventory from donations. They include books, clothing and manuscripts dating back to the 16th century, Viola said.

A big concern in preserving some clothing and fragile wood-based items such as books and picture backings is keeping them in acid-free environments, said Viola, the only person at the museum allowed to clean old costumes and linens.

"There are acid-free boxes to keep cos-turnes in because acid breaks down the fibers of the materials," said Viola.

Some linens require cleaning before being stored or displayed so Viola takes the fabrics to her Thousand Oaks home and cleans them, using simple, old-fashioned techniques.

"I use a light detergent to hand-wash the cottons and linens, then I rinse them in distilled water because I don't want any other chemicals in (non-distilled) water to remain on the material," she said.

Once the fabrics are washed and pressed, they are placed on white cotton sheets in the back yard to dry in the sun.

"Manuscripts we keep upstairs in the library from some Spanish settlers of Mexico are behind glass casings," Viola said. "And the backs of framed pictures are removed and replaced with acid-free paper."

Ventura County balks 'super planner' idea

FUTURE — Despite the county's insistence that the major developments be more carefully monitored, county officials are balking at the county's recommendation for a "super planner" to oversee the handling of multifamily projects. However, neither public works nor planning officials favor the idea and although all five county supervisors say better cooperation is needed on planning for lionaire David Murdoch's Lake Sherwood housing development which is under construction, suggested that an overseer be established for each major development in the county. The staff of the county's chief administrative office should carry out that function, the jury said.

However, neither public works nor planning officials favor the idea and although all five county supervisors say better cooperation is needed on planning for major residential tracts, none will agree to put that task into the hands of the county's chief administrative officer.

"What they're suggesting is really a 'super cop' or whatever," said Supervisor Maudie Schaefer.

New child-testimony rules may aid T.O. molest case

By BARBARA MURPHY
Daily News Staff Writer

VENTURA — Last week's California Supreme Court ruling making it easier to prosecute accused child molesters will have a major effect on a Thousand Oaks man charged with 91 molestations counts, officials said.

The high court ruling, which states that child victims who are a part of the case do not have to testify repeatedly do not have to specify which, where, and how individual assaults occurred has made the case against Charles Ceballos, 57, much stronger than it otherwise would have been, Deputy District Attorney Lela Henke-Dobroth said.

"This is the primary case it would have really gone down the tubes if (the Supreme Court) had gone the other way," Henke-Dobroth said. "We would have been indicted repeatedly do not have to specify which, where, and how the council wrestled with the problem during Wednesday night's council meeting.

Under the rules, riders pay 50 cents to travel anywhere within the city or to Los Robles Medical Center in Thousand Oaks, with the city picking up the rest of the taxi fare up to a maximum of $7 a ride. Any other mileage outside the city is paid for by the rider, Michael Matthews, assistant to the city manager, said.

The city, which expects to pay a total of $20,000 for the taxi in the 1989-90 fiscal year, has budgeted $22,000 this year for it. Cost to the city is averaging $1,610 a month, although in December, the city paid $2,343 — 60 percent higher than the average.

"This can be attributed to the holiday season," Matthews said. But recently, the cost to the city

New rules strengthen molestation case

For Thousand Oaks attorney Jenny Scovis, who is representing Celallos, the Supreme Court decision was "distressing."

"It's going to impact me pretty badly on this case," Scovis said.

Celallos is scheduled to be tried Aug. 6 on 91 charges of repeatedly molesting two girls, now ages 11 and 15, over a period of several years.

Henke-Dobroth said the girls claim they were molested more than once a week. The District Attorney's Office decided to file one or two charges for every month dating back to 1984, the outer edge of the statute of limitations.

Henke-Dobroth said the girls remember some specifics about the molestations, but not many.

Defense attorneys have argued that a lack of specifically handicaps an accused molester who is trying to present an alibi or other aspects of a defense. Appellate courts throughout California have split on the issue.

"How can anyone defend themselves against an allegation when they (the children) don't remember the time, the day or the specifics?"

Scovis asked, "I don't think that's really fair."

That is precisely the question the Supreme Court tackled when it decided the appeal of Mark Edwin Jones, a San Diego schoolteacher whose 13-year-old victim was vague about specific molestations.

Jones was convicted of molesting the boy six times, although the child said it happened on countless occasions. An appeals court upheld two counts — saying the child could remember specifically the first and last times he was molested — but threw out the convictions for everything in between.

Chief Justice Malcolm M. Lucas, who wrote the majority opinion in the 5-2 decision, said the issue presented "difficult questions," but could be resolved in favor of the prosecution.

While noting that child-molestation victims often cannot distinguish between separate acts of molestation because of the frequency with which they occur, Lucas wrote that "to hold that such testimony, however credible and substantial, is inadequate to support molestation charges would anomalously favor the offender who subjects his victim to repeated or continuous assaults.

"This opinion attempts to accommodate all legitimate ... concerns without immunizing resident child molesters from prosecution," the opinion says.

Lucas wrote that the child witness must be specific about the type of act committed, the number of times it happened, and the general time period, to make sure it falls within the statute of limitations.

Since more specific items of information are not elements of the crime, they are not necessary to sustain a conviction, Lucas wrote.

Vincent J. O'Neill, Ventura County chief deputy district attorney, argued the Jones case before the Supreme Court on behalf of the California District Attorneys Association. O'Neill said he is pleased that the ruling eliminates a trial court practice of imposing a higher standard for child witnesses.

"If the jury believes the child, that should be sufficient for the conviction to be upheld," O'Neill said.

A major point in O'Neill's argument — and one adopted by the Supreme Court — was that children are no less credible than adults.

be used 365 days a year, he said.

"There are some days which have to be dark just so the groups can prepare for the performance," Murrin said. "This is the first year we are starting to look at what we want to do with the facility in other areas. We are going to try to draw from the whole county. We feel we can pretty much draw from the whole area."

The Port Huenehue center generates between $100,000 and $135,000 a year in revenue, which is about 30 to 40 percent of its operating costs, Murrin said. The average attendance for performances at the center is 70 to 75 percent, he said. The center offers about 275 performances annually, Murrin said.

Oxnard's civic auditorium, which is close in size to the one proposed in Thousand Oaks, would cost about $20 million to build today, officials said.

The annual operating cost of the Oxnard auditorium in 1989-90 was $553,892, but the facility generated only $159,000 in revenue, said Grace Magistrales, Oxnard senior

Dear Bill:

I appreciate all the material you recently sent, concerning the above named individual. This is most helpful to us as we start a file which will lead to refusal of future registration attempts.

I am enclosing a record sheet which I would like to have completed with as much information as you have available. This will enable us to identify Mr. Ceballos should he attempt registration in some other location.

Thanks for your help in giving us a complete file.

Sincerely,

Paul Ernst, Director
Registration Service

RECEIVED AT PHONE CALL FROM [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] ASKING TO MEET WITH MARILYN SNYDER (CONNER VALLEY DISTRICT EXECUTIVE) AND MYSELF AT 2:30 P.M. THIS DATE.

WE MET WITH [REDACTED] AT WHICH TIME
SHE APPEARED VERY DISTRAUGHT AND DELIVERED THE ATTACHED LETTER OF RESIGNATION FROM HER [REDACTED], CHUCK CEBALLOS, AS IDENTIFIED ABOVE.

[REDACTED] RELATED THE FOLLOWING STORY:

ON TUESDAY, JAN 18, 1990, HER [REDACTED]
[REDACTED] BECAME VERY CONCERNED WHEN THE [REDACTED] DID NOT COME HOME FROM SCHOOL AND IT WAS GETTING [REDACTED]

CONF005701

LATE, SHE CHECKED THE SCHOOL AND CALLED HER [REDACTED] AT WORK. WHEN SHE ([REDACTED]) GOT HOME THERE WERE THREE
POLICE CARS AND THEY HAD CHUCK UNDER ARREST. HE WAS TAKEN TO THE THOUSAND OAKS POLICE STATION WHERE THEY HAD [REDACTED]
IT APPEARS THAT [REDACTED] TOLD HER TEACHER
ABOUT SOME ACTIVITY WITH HER FATHER,
CHUCK. THE POLICE THEN PICKED [REDACTED]
UP AT SCHOOL AND TOOK HER TO THE POLICE STATION. AFTER QUESTIONING OF
[REDACTED] ALL PARTIES THEY RETAINED CHUCK
ON CHILD MOLESTATION AND RELEASED [REDACTED]
TO [REDACTED]. CHUCK HAS BEEN ORDERED
NOT TO GO NEAR THE HOUSE OR HAVE ANY
CONTACT WITH [REDACTED]. CHUCK WAS LATER TRANSFERRED TO VENTURA COUNTY JAIL AND THEN RELEASED ON BAIL. HE IS CURRENTLY
STAYING IN CONEJO VALLEY AT AN UNKNOWN
LOCATION.

I BRIEFED [REDACTED] ON WHAT STEPS THE COUNCIL WOULD TAKE IN SUSPENDING CHUCK'S
REGISTRATION AND ALSO INDICATED THAT THIS WAS A CONFIDENTIAL MATTER AND WOULD ONLY BE SHARED WITH THOSE NEEDING TO KNOW; I.E., SCOUT EXECUTIVE, COUNCIL PRESIDENT, AND NATIONAL OFFICE. [REDACTED]

CHUCK CEBALLOS

I FURTHER BRIEFED THE SCOUT EXECUTIVE AND SHARED THESE NOTES WITH HIM. I ALSO CAUSED THE APPROPRIATE LETTER TO BE PREPARED FOR THE PRESIDENT'S SIGNATURE.

SINCE WE HAVE RECEIVED A LETTER OF RESIGNATION FROM CHUCK, I AM SUGGESTING THAT THE LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT BE SENT 'CERTIFIED MAIL' TO HIS PLACE OF EMPLOYMENT.

NOTIFIED DEREK WILCOCK, AREA DIRECTOR, HE SUGGESTED THAT WE NOT SEND THE LETTER TO HIS PLACE OF EMPLOYMENT BUT SINCE WE HAD A LETTER OF RESIGNATION WE SHOULD WAIT AND SEND THE CERTIFIED LETTER AFTER WE KNOW HIS LOCATION.

CHUCK'S ARRANGEMENT DATE IS JANUARY 25, 1990.

1-22-90 FORWARDED ABOVE INFO AND LETTER OF RESIGNATION TO PAUL FRIST, NATIONAL REGISTRARS. ALSO SENT TO DEREK WILCOCK

Dear Mr. Ceballos:

After careful review, we have decided that your registration with the Boy Scouts of America should be suspended. We are therefore compelled to request that you sever any relations that you may have with the Boy Scouts of America. We have received and accepted your letter of resignation from the Ventura County Council and the Boy Scouts of America.

You should understand that BSA membership registration is a privilege and is not automatically granted to everyone who applies. We reserve the right to suspend registration whenever there is a concern that an individual may not meet the high standards of membership which the BSA seeks to provide for American youth.

If you wish to have this decision reviewed by a council review committee, please write to me within 60 days of the date of this letter, explaining your version of the facts supporting your claim that your registration as a BSA member should be granted. The procedures for a review of this decision are attached.

Sincerely,

Herbert Curtis
